Several readers commented on a story we posted about Holy Cross Hospital CEO Peter Hofstetter saying he will remain the hospital's chief administrator despite interviewing for a job in Colorado last month.

The following comments are by readers and do not reflect the opinions of The Taos News.

* "It's time for the useless Board of Trustees at Holy Cross to act! Terminate the contract of Hofstetter immediately. He has no loyalty to HCH — he was ready to bail for a higher salary at another facility.

A chance to ruin yet another hospital. It's apparent that Hofstetter doesn't have a clue what he's doing. Along with his hand picked senior management team he's destroyed our beloved Holy Cross. Recently, one of his senior manager stated that if HCH doesn't merge with another hospital the doors will close in 2014. He's looking for an exit and apparently the Aspen Hospital unanimously didn't like what they saw in Hofstetter and his lack of leadership! It's time for the senior management to be removed and the Board of Trustees to resign!" "Newintown" posted on Oct. 17.

* "Maybe someone gave him a whiff of the bonus he'll get for laying off 40 people," "Lex Python" posted on Oct. 17.

* "He's staying because he wasn't selected not by his choice. His modus of operandi is to move into town, turn surpluses into deficits, destroy the hospital and then move on," "Linda Bence" posted on Oct. 17.
